Jackson Anderson merges with Meyers Norris Penny

More resources available to Edmonton-area businesses

Edmonton, AB – Jan. 2, 2007 – Getting clear, straightforward business advice with a Western perspective will be easier than ever for Aboriginal and other mid-market clients thanks to the merger of Edmonton-based Jackson Anderson LLP with Meyers Norris Penny LLP (MNP). Through the merger, which became effective Jan. 1, 2007, Jackson Anderson is now operating under the name Meyers Norris Penny LLP. MNP is the only Top 10 chartered accountancy and advisory firm based in Western Canada, and has been serving the Edmonton marketplace since 1993.

Owen Jackson, CA and Clay Anderson, CA, are both pleased to join MNP. “The opportunity to access MNP’s team of specialists will be wonderful for our clients. Both of our firms also have an approachable, down-to-earth style of doing business, which makes me confident this merger will be a great success for everyone,” said Jackson.

The two firms share another key characteristic: both provide specialized expertise to Aboriginal communities across Western Canada.

“Like MNP, Owen and Clay have worked extensively with First Nations and Métis clients, helping them to pursue viable economic development opportunities,” says MNP chief executive officer Daryl Ritchie, FCA. He adds, “MNP’s team of aboriginal specialists look forward to expanding on this foundation by providing an even wider range of customized solutions, from gaming to government negotiations.”

The newly merged firm will operate from MNP’s downtown office, located at:

Meyers Norris Penny LLP
400, 10104 – 103 Avenue
